DECOR & MORE Ivy and Vine pieces

Prep Cool

Atlanta interior design expert Heather Hogan Roberts recently launched Ivy and Vine (ivyandvine.com), her swoon-worthy collection of vintage pieces for the home. The brand's identity mixes both traditional prep and quirky modern and makes it all congruent. Concentrating on pieces she susses out from unusual places, Roberts intersperses bold pops of color with classic patterns, creating a space loaded with timeless, yet whimsical, style. "I think found and refurbished objects that convey a sense of history can make a home such a warm place for living," she explains. In addition to the online retailer's well-edited selection of furniture, lighting and barware, we especially love Ivy and Vine's collection of accessories like brass gazelle bookends and python-printed pillows. —Dana Hazels Seith

MAKING MOVES

Homey Haven

Baccarat at Owen Lawrence

When Owen Lawrence's regulars bemoaned the commute to the shop, owner Larry Pritchard listened. He moved his chic home boutique from the Westside to the heart of Buckhead to be closer to the other stores and restaurants his client's typically frequent.

The new 3,200-square-foot showroom, just across from The St. Regis Atlanta, still features luxe pieces from Ralph Lauren Home and one of the city's largest collections of Baccarat. In fact, Baccarat designer Thomas Bastide will stop by the store on Oct. 18 and 19 to introduce and sign the new Chateau Baccarat crystal wine collection. 87 W. FOCUSED IN

An Eye for an Eye

These glasses don't just look good... they do good. For every 141 Eyewear (141eyewear.com) piece purchased, the company gives someone in need a new pair of prescription glasses. According to the World Health Organization, 153 million people are unable to see due to lack of access to eyewear or vision care. The hot lenses found at Ansley Eye Care are the product of a sustainable business model that receives a lower profit margin because 141 pays for those in need directly.

SHOP BUZZ

Rumor Has It...

After much celebri-buzz, luxury Swiss timekeeper Hublot (hublot.com) is opening doors at Phipps Plaza. >>> We're all wrapped up in Atlanta-bred A. Barclay Designs' (abarclaydesigns.com)

A. Barclay silk scarf enormous screen-printed silk scarves. Handcrafted in Italy, they loom large at 3.5 by 6.5 feet and are made of natural materials like silk, cotton and linen. Every purchase buys an item of need for a Tanzanian orphan. >>> Rome-import 7Camicie (shop.7camicie.com) debuts only its second stateside spot in Phipps Plaza with stylishly tailored shirts, outerwear and accessories for both beaux and belles. >>> Elisabeth de Feydeau's Arty Fragrance candle line is exclusively at Rhinoceros Boutique (shopathino.com). The scents are the complete embodiment of all things French nobility—inspired by royal perfume, but with trendy updates. —EB
